This workshop is designed to address the emotional needs of thyroid cancer survivors at all stages of coming to terms with the disease. When serious illness strikes, the tendency for many is to withdraw and struggle privately. We irrationally tell ourselves that we'll reach out when we feel better, limiting our options for support. As a result, loneliness and fear can become overwhelming at the time we most need to reach out to others. In this session, we will address and practice the challenge of opening our hearts here with others in the group, gaining confidence in the process.

North Shore C Ballroom

124 Caregivers Survival Tools for Coping with Stress. Diane Blake, M.A. Cancer patients and their families are on an emotional roller coaster. Waiting for diagnostic test results, witnessing the after effects of radiation and discovering your loved ones cancer has metastasized are just a few of the stressful events that can occur. Job loss, escalating financial pressures, family expectations and life style changes are aspects of an illness that one is not always ready for. Recognizing the stresses involved in living with cancer, knowing the resources available to you and utilizing them can enhance the quality of your lives and help you to live life to the fullest.

Gloucester

125 A Path Towards Understanding: Seeing Others through the Lens of DiSC. Cheri Lindle, M.Ed. The goals of this session are: 1. Gain a brief understanding of your own DiSC style; 2. Become aware of how you tend to deliver information to others, based on who you are; 3. Gain an understanding of style differences, as it relates to doctor / patient / loved one ~relationships; 4. Gain an understanding of you or your loved one's style, as it relates to how you (or they) deal with the diagnosis and cancer journey.
